

US gymnast Olivia Dunne risked being kicked off of Instagram after appearing to accidentally expose herself on the social media site. The Louisiana State University acrobat, 21, posted a selfie on her story captioned 'i be missin u nyc' with a tearful smiling emoji - and what appears to be her nipple poking out of her top. Dunne - also known as Livvy - sailed close to the wind with the accidentally revealing snap shared to her five million followers because Meta-owned Instagram operates a strict policy on nudity.

The post, first reported by a German news website, Chiếu ngực nguyên khối gỗ gỗ đỏ has disappeared - with Dunne's story now filled with videos and photos of an LSU meet at the Raising Cane's River Centre in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. And while the post has been deleted, the site could yet take action - and it could spell financial trouble for HomePage her as the platform is her biggest source of income, earning her six-figure sums for sponsored posts. Olivia 'Livvy' Dunne has become a global superstar after joining TikTok in 2020 to share videos of herself practicing gymnastics. She may yet provoke the ire of Instagram after appearing to post an image of herself on her Instagram story accidentally flashing a nipple. Dunne was in New York at the end of last month on a stopover after a Florida athletics meet - sharing images of herself in front of her Times Square billboard. Dunne is believed to be one of America's highest paid college athletes from her NIL (name, Sập chiếu ngực đóng hộp image and likeness) earnings alone. Last year, she became a Sports Illustrated 'rookie', posing for homepage its legendary swimsuit issue. Dunne will return for the 2024 Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue - her second consecutive appearance in the iconic annual edition. She has become a celebrity in her own right after accumulating millions of followers on social media (pictured with Mike Tyson at the ESPY sports awards in Hollywood in 2023). Dunne has continued to post on Instagram following what appeared to be an accidental nipple flash, sharing images of an athletics meet in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. New Jersey-born Dunne had been in New York on a stopover whilst on her way home to Louisiana after an athletics meet in Florida.

external site Last month, she posted photographs of herself on Instagram in front of a giant billboard of herself in the city's Times Square, joking: 'I think I know that girl from somewhere.' But her accidental nipple flash is less of a laughing matter since Instagram has a famously low tolerance of topless female nudity.
